Quick release harness kit

Very comfortable solution of the straps with the possibility of a fast and easy taking-off of the harness. It is a big advantage when taking off the harness while on rippling surface. Advised positioning of the buckle is on the right shoulder strap. (#8105)

Dryer for the counterlung

A trifle, but very practical. Counterlungs are tied together and hung over the dryer pole, cord or anything available and are let to dry. (#1590)

Handle

Make the carrying of the apparatus and its pulling out of water much easier. The red color attracts attention of the untutored on-board staff, who could otherwise damage the apparatus through its wrong seizing. (#7071)

Argon strap

Strap for attaching the argon tank to the base of the apparatus. (#7073)

Argon loop

Strap for attaching the argon tank to the backplate. (#1589)

O-ring pouch

Practical pouch for extra O-rings for CCR Liberty. It is attached preferably to a Velcro, which is on the bottom of the counterlung. It is sold including several O-rings, those, whose loss you discover when already standing waist-deep in water. (#8116)

Set of Liberty plugs

Plugs for all open valves and hoses against the entering of water and dirt. Important protection for your apparatus. (#8106)

Plug with a Remove before dive ribbon

Plug preventing water and dirt from entering the oxygen hose, which is prone to being damaged in such a case. The ribbon warns of the presence of the plug, can lead to forgetting to attach the oxygen to the solenoids, thus leading to serious damage to both the apparatus and the diver. (#7070)

Remove before dive ribbon

Placed on the end cap of the oxygen hose as a warning against forgetting to connect oxygen. (#1537)

Protection covers on the corrugated hoses

Increase the mechanical durability of the corrugated hoses. (#3202)

Protection covers for the handset cables

In the confusion and lack of space on board a swinging boat, it may happen that the handset cable gets stuck under the base when putting down the apparatus, thus damaging the cable's isolation. Additional mechanical protection is therefore suitable. (#3202)

Neoprene pouch

You can use it for protection of your Liberty handset or Freedom computer. (#3203 – red, #3204 black)

Silicon protective sleeve

Serves for the protection of your CCR Liberty handset against a mechanical damage. (#3201)
